A NOTE FROM THE DIRECTOR

FIDDLER ON THE ROOF is the ideal musical production to open Theatre in the Park's 22nd season. The musical is clearly about traditions and how they are built by family and community. Throughout the show, Tevye's traditions are challenged by the people of his community and family. In the end, faced with hardships and strife, Tevye is still able to continue with his life because those forged traditions will always be with him. They are the remembrances of his community.

Theatre in the Park has also built itself upon traditions, the same traditions of community and family as those of Tevye's. The strength of such a program can only come from the comradery of the many dedicated individuals working together for the ideal vision. Whether you are an actor, musician or audience member, you are a community member of our big family. It is in this way that the summer tradition of Theatre in the Park has been able to persevere and maintain itself over the past twenty-two years.
